Silica Resources Australia, a founding member of the Global Coalition for Responsible Sand and Silicates

As part of Silica Resources Australia's (SRA) commitment to sustainability and community, we are proud to announce SRA are a founding member of the global Coalition for Responsible Sand and Silicates (the coalition).

The coalition is a global platform bringing together stakeholders to build a future where sand and silicates are sourced, used and produced responsibly. The work is grounded in the OECD Due Diligence Guidelines and extends into positive contributions that go beyond risk avoidance.

The Coalition is the only organisation dedicated to responsible sourcing and production practices for sand and silicate materials. Other founding members include the University of Queensland, IKEA, Roca Group, and WWF.

Anne Pleash, Stakeholder Relations with SRA, travelled to Sweden earlier this month for a meeting hosted by Inter IKEA, at Älmhult, Sweden to collaborate on responsible practices and formally launch the coalition.
