Annexure A – Inside Information

1. Inside information

Inside Information means information which is not generally available and, if it were generally available, a reasonable person would expect it to have a material effect on the price or value of Securities.

For the purposes of this Annexure A, Securities means financial products including securities, derivatives, interests in managed funds, stocks, bonds and superannuation products.

2. Information that is generally available

Information is considered to be generally available if:

(a) it consists of readily observable matter; or

(b) it has been made known in a manner that would bring it to the attention of people who commonly invest in securities, the price of which might be effected by the dissemination of information and a reasonable period for dissemination of that information has elapsed; or

(c) it consists of deductions, conclusions or inferences made or drawn from the readily observable matter.

For the purposes of the insider trading provisions, section 1042A of the Corporations Act defines information broadly and includes matters of supposition and other matters which are insufficiently definite to warrant being made known to the public. It also includes matters relating to the intentions, or likely intentions, of a person.

3. Material Effect on the Price of Securities

Pursuant to clause 1042D of the Corporations Act, Information is taken to have a material effect on the price or value of a security (as outlined in clause 1) where it would, or would be likely to, influence people who commonly acquire securities in deciding whether to acquire or dispose of them.

It is not possible to list all of information that may be material, however, the following type of information would be likely to be considered to have a material effect on the Company's share price:

(a) information regarding a material increase or decrease in the Company's financial performance from previous results or forecasts, such as changes to profit results;

(b) a proposed material business or asset acquisition or sale;

(c) the damage or destruction of a material operation of the Group;

(d) proposed material legal proceedings to be initiated by or against the Company;

(e) regulatory action or investigations undertaken by a Government authority;

(f) the launch of a new business or material new product; and

(g) a proposal to undertake a new issue of securities or major change in financing.
